

Language Background Form

The Graduate Program in History has a language requirement. Students at the Master's level will have to demonstrate reading knowledge in one foreign language if the major professor requires it.

All Ph.D. students will have to pass a language exam to demonstrate reading knowledge in at least one foreign language by the end of the third semester in the doctoral program.

Please indicate below any prior knowledge of a foreign language, along with your level of fluency (written and/or spoken). Please be specific about course work and informal experience, such as residence abroad or the use of languages other than English at home.
